LOS ANGELES – 3 FEBRUARY 2025 – PhillipsX is proud to announce its first selling exhibition of the new year, Creative Confluence. Taking place at Phillips Los Angeles from 14 February to 13 March, the exhibition will celebrate the ways in which community, shared experiences, and collective intelligence shape artistic expression in contemporary culture. Featuring works by Mario Joyce, Rugiyatou Ylva Jallow, Ferrari Sheppard, Ryan Schneider, and Phillip K. Smith III, among others, a portion of the proceeds from the exhibition will be donated to wildfire relief efforts in the region.

Miety Heiden, Deputy Chairwoman and Head of Private Sales, said, “Creative Confluence centers on the concept of Scenius, which reimagines genius as a collective force that emerges when artists and thinkers collaborate within a shared cultural space. Through this exhibition, we aim to blur the lines between artist and audience, individual and collective, and process and product, presenting a diversity of voices across various mediums and practices. The city of Los Angeles has historically always been strengthened by the unity of its community. Now more than ever, at this significant moment in the city’s history, we look forward to drawing attention to the true innovation that arises from the rich interplay of individuals and shared experiences.”

Artists who will be featured in Creative Confluence include Shirin Abedinirad, Ferguson Amo, Kim Dacres, Tara Donovan, José Duran, Sasha Ferré, Rugiyatou Ylva Jallow, Mario Joyce, Samuel Nnorom, Ryan and Trevor Oakes, Ryan Schneider, Ferrari Sheppard, Phillip K. Smith III, and Martha Tuttle.
